8. Persecution - The punishment against races / religions and a particular group when they have innocent + nothing done wrong

9. Source A is critical of the policy of Appeasing Hitler. How do you know? (4 marks)
Tip. Your answer should refer to the message, the details and the context.

'Remember . . . One More Lollypop, and Then You All Go Home!'

3

If shows how the Appeaser in the middle (The LON) let Nazis get away with everything believing that they would leave after one singular lollypop.

rules in the Treaty of Versailles
I believe ^{the} lollypops refer to Countries or ~~places~~ the Nazis took over and how the LON did nothing about it.

The Nazis are portrayed as Dragons and the appeaser is just a weak man this shows that the Nazis are slowly building their way up to taking over everything.

This refers to how Hitler kept on demanding more.

10. Describe two ways that the Nazi party controlled the German people in the 1930s. (4)

Propaganda was 1 way ^{Nazis} Germans controlled Germans. This is seen through the swastika which was drawn/placed every where and posters that persuaded ~~immediately~~ annoyed Germans (because of the IOV) to side with the Nazis and that the Nazis would bring Germany back.

1 way that Nazis controlled Germans was through fear. Many of the Nazis ~~soldiers~~ like the ~~SS~~ Nazis had many undercover police punishing people by killing or ~~hurt~~ hurting them. This made opposing the ~~Germans~~ ^{Nazis} practically impossible.

The other way ~~Germans~~ Nazis got Germany to side with them was the event of the Reichstag fire. This was when one of Germany government buildings was burnt down ~~by~~. The Nazis saw this as a very good time to get the Germans to trust them. They ~~could~~ arrested a man who was from the "Soviet" and said he burnt the building down.

11. Which is the main reason why Germany was unhappy with the Treaty of Versailles?

- Loss of land

OR

- War guilt and reparations (12 marks)

Tip. Make sure that you use the key words about the Treaty in your answer.

8

Germanys were very upset about losing land like Saarland, East Prussia, Alsace-Lorraine because it made them feel humiliated. This is because they ~~didn't~~ felt ashamed of how Germany lost the War and how embarrassing it was as they had to abide by the ~~terms~~ Loss of Land terms.

~~Germanys also felt~~ Some Germans may have felt confused or maybe even angry as many were separated from families or they may have themselves been separated as overnight they became a citizen of another country.

Finally Germans were unhappy with the Land terms as the Saarland was very important for Germany as it had 50% of Germany's Iron production and many coal mines. This meant lots of Germans lost their jobs which would make life ~~even~~ very hard for them as ~~as without a steady~~ ~~lot of money it would be hard~~ ~~for them to buy day to day resources as~~ ~~due to 6 billion reparations Germans had~~ ~~to pay prices would have shot up~~ develop

16% coal

On the Other hand Germans felt Article 231 (War guilt clause) as unfair as they believed that the War was not entirely ~~their~~ Germany's fault. They felt that the blame should have gone to other countries and not entirely ~~their~~ Germany.

Germans also felt that ~~that~~ paying the Reparations was "impossible" to pay. As in the ~~early~~ late 1910s the 6.6 billion figure was extremely large. They even called it ~~6000~~ six thousand ~~60~~ six hundred million.

Finally due to the Reparations of £6.6 billion it made lives extremely hard for Germans as many of them lost their jobs, and even Germans with jobs would be struggling as the Reparations would make day to day resources like food and electricity very expensive. Hyperinflation.

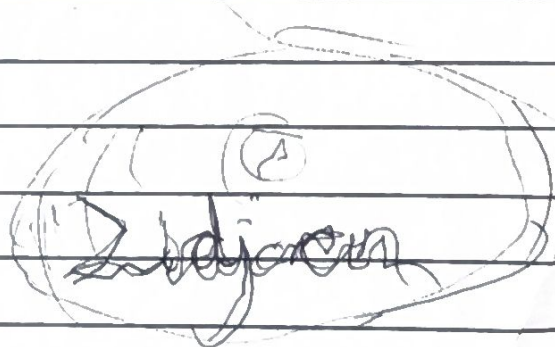

In Conclusion I believe War Guilt and Reparations was the main reason Germans felt unhappy with the treaty, due to their lives becoming very hard due to the ~~extreme~~ large reparation fee. They felt ashamed and thought it unfair they had to take all the blame and ~~they~~ because they thought £6.6 billion was impossible to pay.

Compare.

The War Gult causes the Germans to feel Embarrassed and they felt it was unfair Reparations add to this struggle of the Germans due to Hyperinflation but the loss of Land targets a certain number of people who were
